I have had a fowl-run made in the Residency grounds close to the old fowl-shed which is now ruinous & is under repair by the S.S. The contractor's bill is for 115/1/6 & I wish to pay it as soon as possible.

Is a fowl-run debitable to the M.W.S. grant for petty construction or should it be against the Garden funds? It does not seem to be a fair charge against the latter.

Repairs to fowl house have been debited to the M.W.S. grant for petty construction- vide entries -- marked in red pencil at flags C & D in the Register placed below. So th may also be debited to this ~~grant~~. Now Please see sl. 62/A of file 118/1901. If approved the Dy. Assistant Controller of Military Accounts, Wellington, may be asked whether there is any objection for Resident sanctioning an expenditure of Rs .119-1-6 and whether this ~~can~~ may be met from the amount placed at the disposal of the Garrison Engineer for petty construction and repairs. If his reply is in the affirmative the Garrison Engineer, Bangalore, may be asked to surrender this amount to pay the contractor.

3. The case, though not of great importance in itself, raises some questions of principle. My conclusions regarding it are as follows:-

(a) When a residence is built for an official at the public expense subject to recovery of rent under the recognised codes, the fact that a portion of the expenditure(whether on accommodation or fittings) is proposed to be incurred for a recreative purpose does not by itself involve the necessity for the sanction of the Secretary of State in Council. Provided the provision of the house, the scale of outlay, and the arrangements for the recovery of rent are sanctioned by proper authority in India, such sanction is, prima facie, sufficient to cover the accommodation and amenities proposed to be provided. This applies to necessary repairs,renewals, and enlargements as well as to the original construction.

(b) It is, of course, the duty of the sanctioning authority to satisfy iteself that the accommodation and amenities are not greater or more expensive than is reasonable having regard to the official position of the intended occupant, the social duties which it entails, and other relevant circumstances such as those mentioned by you in paragraph 3 as existing in the present case. I have no doubt that you will take care to ensure that these tests are in every case strictly applied, and will disallow any expenditure that does not satisfy them. They should be applied, if they have not already been applied, in the present case.

(c) Though, for the reasons stated, expenditure of the kind in question does not as such, provided it satisfies these tests, require my sanction, as being of an unusual nature or for objects outside the ordinary work of administration, an officer of audit would have the right(under paragraph 7 of my predecessor's Despatch dated 31st July 1914, No.82) of raising an objection in any case in which he thought that the limiting
